Relationship

To protect the privacy of students and families, federal law sets certain conditions on the disclosure of personal information from records kept by schools. The relevant law is the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 (FERPA). FERPA establishes rules governing the disclosure of student information to parties other than the student. In most cases, a student's prior written consent is required to disclose "personally identifiable information," other than "directory information" (e.g., name, address, telephone listing, date and place of birth, major field of study, degrees). See the Cal Maritime catalog for more information.
