However, she expressed confidence that some of the student leaders would be interested in the new semester. It was clarified that this event will be separate from Black History month and planned likely for early to mid January (date to be confirmed) during a leadership hour. Demetra raised questions about similar library events and the purpose of the real talk event. Tyrone and Aparna clarified the intended purpose which is to initially start dialogue and then possibly move to action with a follow up. Nipoli raised the possibility of combining real talk with Friday formation and others suggested ideas for integrating it into existing programs for students (e.g., ELDP, FYE). Opportunities and barriers of these suggestions were noted.

Nipoli recommended the importance of a training or event for faculty and staff, including possibly about myths and facts. She further described the possibility for identifying role responsibilities, an event with food, and possibly in the faculty lounge. It was also suggested that a current staff member with disability participate in the program to provide first-hand account/experience. Tyrone mentioned willingness to collaborate with community Vet Center contacts around an event. Ian and Siobhan agreed to take lead on disability awareness events, possibly one targeted for faculty/staff and one focused on students.

A. Faculty Retreat FYI: Nipoli shared how at the recent faculty retreat there was discussion of the NSSE data and the examples of student report of low opportunities for engagement across differences at Cal Maritime. She noted expressing the importance for all faculty, not just those in the culture and communication department, to promote diversity (e.g., notifying students about events, expressing interest and enthusiasm for events, offering incentives to attend events). Nipoli recommended reaching out to department chairs at this time and in this NSSE context to offer opportunities to promote UC events (e.g., BHM, Intl Day). Elaine noted how she is a committee member on the Women in Maritime Leadership Conference and how this is an additional opportunity for faculty to promote engagement.

B. Common Reading Program book recommendations: Ian and Elaine provided an overview of the program and the current stage of soliciting books to be considered on the first review. Elaine noted how the list is more diverse than in the past and how the emphasis on global awareness is remaining the focal point of the program, as it was last year. Members and partners are encouraged to submit book recommendations to Ian by Wednesday January 17th for consideration by the executive committee to possibly recommend to the common reading program committee.

C. Latino and Black graduation ceremonies: Tyrone shared the initial thoughts of a proposal to create additional graduation ceremonies/recognition events for African American and Latino students. These would accompany existing ceremonies and be consistent with practices at other colleges and Tyrone shared this impression and noted there have been many discussions with student leaders. Tari noted how the acquisition has been ongoing and was not new despite surprise from students. Ingrid estimated that 70 students would be affected and that the plan is to make changes to the building for students to live. The discussion included the purpose of this expansion, logistics of this potential change (e.g., location, cost, promotion adjustments), and how this request fits with the focus of the Unity Council. In general, members were in support of this change so long as it accompanies needed support. Decisions about this change will be made at the subcommittee level.

Siobhan Case is collaborating with Nipoli Kamdar in faculty development to provide a forum to discuss myths about students with disabilities and disabilities in general. This event was scheduled for 2/8/18 at 4pm in the faculty lounge. Further programming for students will be explored following this initial event and information gleaned from the topics addressed.

7. Common Reading Program: Ian provided a brief update on the program and that Feb 12th is the deadline for submitting suggestions for books to be reviewed. Next steps will include the program’s committee narrowing down the list to the finalists. Ian will update members at that time and devote meeting time to discuss possibly advancing support for particular books or themes.

8. African American and Latino recognition ceremonies: Tyrone provide a brief update and overview of discussions and preliminary plans/thoughts about hosting a recognition ceremony or ceremonies for African American and Latino students, likely led by current students groups. He further provided background and context for these ceremonies at other campuses while others shared their experiences, including the benefits to students with unique, shared experiences. A component of the discussion and value of such ceremonies was the acknowledged struggle and challenge for many African American and Latino students, which makes such ceremonies particularly meaningful. Cynthia emphasized including faculty in the planning and events themselves. Questions were asked about the number of students that would be included as well as logistical questions regarding time, place, budget, etc. Amelia expressed support for students who would be interested in these ceremonies and also raised questions about being more inclusive of 1st generation and other students. In general the group was supportive of this idea, yet somewhat uncertain of whether current barriers (logistics, support from student groups) are too much to hold the ceremonies this year.

9. GSA update: Amelia shared news about the LGBTQ training on Feb 17th from 9-12 in abs 102. Ian passed around the newly created flyer. Amelia also noted that the CSUEB Queer Conference is March 10th and that a group from the GSA plans to attend. Amelia reported that LGBTQ speaker and activist Shane Ortega spoke to the Cal Maritime GSA and other campus GSAs, and this is being considered again for the future.

10. Free Speech event: Ingrid shared that campus counsel is interested in participating in such an event. She recommended that a meeting with admin, faculty, and staff would be helpful prior to an open forum event with students, likely on the same day.

- Hot Topic Discussion (10 minutes), National student walkout on March 14th at 10am for 17 minutes; #Marchforourlives on March 24 (Oakland, SF, Benicia and more)
  - Ian introduced the meeting with this timely topic as it relates to the recent school shooting and women’s history month. Read from recent Sacramento Bee article and women’s organization about gun violence. Opened the floor for discussion. Members raised questions and made comments including wanting to understand where violent behavior comes from, how this news creates a feeling of being “on edge” or uneasiness, that assessing and predicting violence is difficult to determine, that acknowledgement of others can be a protective step to preventing violence, mention of Chief Gordon and Marianne Sportano in risk management as relevant people to this discussion, mention that data exists from Cal Maritime students that many do not feel cared for, which was also noted to be reflected in some staff and faculty.

- Old Business
  - Event Planning
    - International Day (April): Elaine
      - Elaine updated the group: Tyrone is helping with flyer development; continued call for interest in creating a table (Travis and GSA agreed to hold a table); entertainment for the event was confirmed (Drummm and line dancing); Demetra agreed to reach out to International Experience about a table
  - Other
    - Common reading program http://library.csum.edu/commonreading
    - Ian provided an overview of the program and options for how the unity council may participate in the selection process, including individually or as a group. He also passed out a list of the 5 book finalists. Elaine, as a member of the common reading program committee, updated the group on the specific books and provided a synopsis. She also noted that the authors are people of color.
Last, Feedback due March 23

• Old Business
  o Latino and Black grad ceremony ▪ Discussion that the “why” behind the event should be strongly articulated – i.e., is this a cultural celebration or a recognition of students who have overcome obstacles? If it’s the latter, several UC members felt that it would be important to include students from other populations as well – i.e., former foster youth, first-gen college students, etc.
  o Black History Month program review ▪ Great feedback from community members and administration. Subcommittee debrief to follow within the next couple of weeks.

• New Business
  o Chinese Exclusion Act documentary
    ▪ When/ where TBD
  o Free Speech event ▪ Working with campus counsel. Idea is to get sub-groups together on campus to discuss current policies, and then make some determinations about program delivery by group (students, faculty, staff, etc.)
    ▪ Actual events will likely take place during the fall semester at this point.
  o Disability Awareness ▪ Siobhan Case from Disability Services collaborated with faculty development for an informal reception last month. While attendance was low, the discussion was rich and faculty asked lots of good questions. Looking at future programming for Disability Awareness Month in October.

• Announcements
  o GSA will be sending 10-11 students to the 3rd Annual Queer Conference at CSUEB on March 10. Prof. Metz will be giving a talk at the event on coming out in communities of color. Keynote speaker is Staceyann Chin.
  o Greenlining Economic Summit, May 24 in Oakland ▪ Highlights economic issues affecting communities of color. Registration $60.
  o Undocumented Student Resource Binder
    ▪ Elaine purchased this resource from Educators for Fair Consideration. Available for UC members to use, or copies can be accessed o Andres Romero brought up the prospect of showing a film highlighting Cesar Chavez or another notable Latino during the Maritime Film Festival. Since it’s probably late for this year, Andres is considering other opportunities to screen the 2014 Cesar Chavez film in another campus venue.

- Agenda review:
  - GSA announcement: Request for volunteer to help with tabling event at Preview Day on Saturday April 14th from 1230-2pm in Mayo Hall. Interested? Contact Travis Bassett TBassett@csum.edu
  - Common reading program book selection added to agenda
  - Orientation week diversity session scheduled for Thursday August 16th from 930-1030am. Compass point of emphasis is Global Awareness.

- Old Business
  - Event Planning
    - International Day: Elaine provided an update on International day planning including drum circle and line dancing, food trucks and catering, 9 culturally themed tables, promotional banner effective yet not sturdy (to be tied better in future years), Tyrone will be taking photos at the event, and reminder about cultural dress approved. Ian encouraged others to engage students who are dressed in cultural attire. Members are encouraged to attend the event and assist before and after as available.
    - Common reading program book selection: Elaine provided an update that the committee selected The Leavers by Lisa Ko. Elaine noted relevant unity council themes in the book including undocumented migration experience, adoption, from an author of color, and an enjoyable read.

- New business
  - Year in review
    - Events, budget, planning for next year: Ian provided an overview of the past year by reviewing the pictures and info on the Unity Council web site where events are archived. Ian also provided an overview of the anticipated budget expenses for the year yet did not provide specific numbers, noting limitations of not having direct access to the budget expenses and not having a full account since January. In general Ian estimated that the majority of the budget is accounted for, with decreases in speaker costs this year and increases in supplies and catering.
    - Demetra and others shared feedback about the importance of measuring outcomes, including participation and attendance (categorized by Gathering data was discussed and Amelia noted mobile application called Cal Maritime Rewards, which is being developed and used by housing and can be used by students, faculty and staff to check-in to an event as well as possibly gathering other data points. Another option for collecting data include paper surveys at events as well as annual surveys of key constituents.

- Additional feedback about the year was generally positive, including the visibility of regular events and advertisements, which reach a broad audience and appeal to a variety of campus community members.
  - Planning for next year:
    - Suggestions for improvement measurement of outcomes, orientation information for students and faculty/staff.
    - Orientation week diversity session: Amelia and Travis suggested the performance group from 2-3 years ago (Strange Like Me from High Impact Training) that was diverse and addressed multiple topics ranging from race, gender and sexuality. The interactive element of the performance, albeit “edgy”, was a positive for engagement and impact. Members were generally in agreement about this activity.
  - Other discussions:
    - Sharon and others raised questions and concerns about the lack of celebratory recognition from the campus generally of recent events including Cesar Chavez Day and the 50th anniversary of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.’s assassination. Others expressed similar concerns and Elaine suggested working with Bobby King. Ian asked if Sharon would draft a list of diversity-related holidays and events that can be shared with the UC for review, and can then be used to work with Bobby King and marketing to create a promotional plan for the next academic year.
